Foreword

Westminster Presbyterian Church in downtown Minneapolis is pleased to sponsor the Justice Choir Songbook and the country's charter chapter, Justice Choir – Twin Cities. Most of the pieces in the Songbook are new. They were composed and written by people from across this land and curated and co-edited by Abbie Betinis, Ahmed Anzaldúa, and Tesfa Wondemagegnehu. We are grateful for their commitment. They are helping us sing toward the time when all will live in a just, peaceful, and sustainable world.

At Westminster, our Christian faith calls us to seek justice, to advocate for the full inclusion of all God's children, to work for racial and economic equity, and to protect the earth. We sing because in the human voice the sound of a better tomorrow can be heard. The old ways of exclusion and disparity begin to give way and our hearts swell with hope.

The longing for a just and peaceful world is not limited to any one religious tradition or practice. People of faith and goodwill everywhere want to build a new future. Westminster invites you to join the movement for justice wherever you live. There are others who will work with you. Together we can transform the world.

A friend of mine who lives under an oppressive regime in another land once said to me that those who rule them can take away economic opportunity and political and civil rights and freedom of movement, but they can never take away their art. For them, dance and poetry, painting and song have become ways to resist.

That's also why we sing for justice: no matter the circumstances we can always sing, and when we sing we create community and animate courage...and the world begins to change.

We invite you to join us in singing and working for that day of justice – and to share this music with others.

Background, Process, and Vision

On Jan 21, 2017, my husband and I – he in his pink suspenders and I in my hat – were marching with our neighbors to the St. Paul Capitol. We were frightened and angry. We were determined and resilient. Signs all around us read, "Raising our voices for equality!" and "Hear us!" and "A little bit louder now!" Perhaps it was the Minnesota winter, but apart from a few brave souls who started a few chants, and a small group of students trying to lead a few songs which the rest of us didn't know, the march was largely quiet. It wasn't that our emotions weren't high. They were hopeful and rising. The many faces around us showed years of stories. We enthusiastically pumped our homemade signs up and down as we marched, but largely kept to the groups we arrived in. I came home energized, but thinking something was missing. How could we, here in Minnesota, "choral country" no less, have missed an opportunity to channel our hopes and fears into a focused vocal message? Why didn't I try to get something going there in the crowd? As a singer and composer, I've made music my whole life, and I know, for me, that music is the place where emotion meets action. I know from what I've learned about the Civil Rights era (the previous Civil Rights era) how lyrics can focus a message in a song like We Shall Overcome (I recently heard for the first time a 1964 recording of my grandfather – who helped organize massive Civil Rights rallies in Los Angeles – singing We Shall Overcome alongside Martin Luther King Jr.). I know from growing up in the '80s how the simple slap/slap/clap pattern of We Will Rock You can instantly transform a vicious lunchroom into a whole cafeteria of "cool" (or so it felt). I learned from singing rounds with my family on long car trips how the lattice-work of a canon – where a melody becomes its own harmony – is actually the sound of loved ones quietly saying to each other through song: I'm here for you, I'll hold you up.

When was the last time you sang in a huge crowd of people? At a sporting event? At church? Maybe in a choir? I find that coming together to sing beloved songs, at its best, is rarely just about whatever particular song... the lyrics, the tune... is being sung at the moment. For me, it's about the individual stories that make up a million memories which fly by as I sing... my grandmother squeezing my hand in the pew, the smell of hops in that basement bar, feeling the rain come down while we cried and belted I Will Always Love You. Looking around a room where people are singing cherished songs together, it's incredible to think of all the little moments, the other voices, the lifetime of mental associations that might be going through peoples' minds.

So what happens if a country doesn't share a singing repertoire anymore? Through this project I've had the opportunity to ask a lot of questions of folks: what songs do you remember singing at home? with friends? in school? Though not exactly a scientific study, I learned some surprising things. (For example, not one of my college students has ever heard Home on the Range!) I learned that the younger people I knew had highly individualized listening habits, and eclectic tastes, usually preferring to listen to different music than even their peers in the same household or dorm room. Older friends had a lot more shared songs and lyrics they could sing together. But the way they sang them seemed to me to be fixed in the grooves of the record they remembered – etched in their world of the 50s, or 70s... 90s even. As I looked in on their memories of singing together, the songs appeared as a tinted reflection of the struggles of a different time.

This is partly why I felt so compelled to explore the new songs being created today. For a whole generation of people in this country, protest songs carry a world of memories. Rather than try to replace what those great, timeless songs mean to people (myself included), I see these new songs of protest and solidarity as an experiment in coming together with vulnerability, with no sacred ties, no important memories to clutch to the chest, and no levels of experience. These songs are new to all of us, and that gives us a beautiful chance to open our ears and open our eyes, to look at our neighbor singing next to us, to really see them there, and to try this together.

Pete Seeger said, "Get people to sing together, and they'll act together too." Inspired, I posted my query to social media: "What songs did you sing at the Women's March today?" Answers came pouring in from around the country. Composer Andrea Ramsey said she had started improvising songs right then and there, and people had started to join in with her while they marched. "Will you send them to me?" I asked. Tesfa Wondemagegnehu sent me an urgent note, wondering if Andrea and I might be thinking about a songbook – yes, I said, we are. By chance, his church had already announced the formation of something called Justice Choir, which he would direct, and they needed songs.

The three of us put out an open Call for Songs – seeking new songs of struggle, solidarity, justice, equality, peace and protest. In just a few weeks, with the help of some incredible well-connected friends who spread the word, we had received nearly 150 entries from around the USA, England, Germany, Scotland, and Mexico. With the help of more generous friends, we organized small social events to sing through the songs together to try them out. I met my friend Ahmed Anzaldúa, a pianist and conductor, at a pub in St Paul and we practiced teaching some of the songs to strangers. Tesfa and I logged long hours scheming about the structure of the Justice Choir venture. What could we do with a new songbook? What were we trying to solve exactly?

"We need to come together," Tesfa said. "Like a truce?" I asked. "No, no," he said, "we need to LISTEN to each other. We need to ask the tough questions. This can't be partisan, this needs to be EVERYBODY. This needs to be about trust, and love, and also about fear... there's real, true, vulnerability in our city right now. We have to have a place where we can 'go there' emotionally. A relatively safe place to venture into vulnerable territory and HAVE THAT CONVERSATION. This won't work if we're literally preaching to the choir."

A few days later, Ahmed, Tesfa, and I were singing through each song submission. I was often surprised by which melodies rang true for one or two of us but not for all, or by which lyrics raised red flags, or carried deepseated baggage, however well-meaning. As we worked, I was surprised by how easily our singing turned into discussions on race, wealth, gender, citizenship, appropriation, survivorship, identity, immigration, faith, gun violence, privilege, peace-making, and the role of art. These conversations have forever changed me.

After we pared down the submissions to 60, we had an outside jury make the final cut, solidifying the collection you see before you here: 43 songs for the issues of our time. Among them, 24 written specifically for this project.

Tesfa, Ahmed and I – along with the many friends who have helped us on this journey and lent us their valuable time, candid opinions, and huge hearts – and the generous, creative songwriters who are entrusting us with their ideas and talents... all of us hope you'll make this Songbook your own. We hope you'll find ways to connect to these songs through your own stories and experiences, and to make them personal. At the same time, we're guessing that not every word or phrase in every song will resonate with every person. And we think that's okay. In fact, we hope you'll take those songs especially into your community and use them to spark the important conversations that need to be had.

Perhaps we'll come to something of a new shared repertoire as we sing these songs far and wide, or perhaps they are just for this moment. Either way, in these 43 songs, we see a place to come together to start a conversation, to shout and sing about some of the issues on people's minds today. Some are hard to get out; they strike deep and don't let go. Some are fun and energizing and might make you want to dance! (Or march!) For me, this is the crux of music's power: where emotion meets action. Let there be no passive listeners. These songs were created for the engagement of all.

The noted theologian and scholar, Otis Moss III, a recent guest lecturer at Westminster Presbyterian Church, says that "we can build our beloved community by looking to include our most vulnerable." Our hope is that the Justice Choir Songbook allows for all who desire to sing for justice, all who hunger for a beloved community, to have a resource to help begin the conversation. This alone isn't the solution, but it could be the beginning of the dialogue.

How to Use This Book A Guide for the Songleader or Conductor

The composers of the 43 songs in this book come from many different backgrounds. Some of these songs were transcribed from the composers' recordings while others were notated by the composers themselves. If you are used to compositions and arrangements where everything is written out, many of these songs may seem incomplete; there's a lot that's not on the page. If you work mainly in the oral tradition, you may find that there's too much on the page. In both cases, the question in the performers' mind is the same: what am I supposed to do with this?

1. Make these songs your own.

You have permission to make changes. In fact, we encourage you to bring your own creativity to this songbook. To quote my co-editor Abbie, these 43 songs are the result of a "chain of generosity." Be the next link in the chain. Is there a barrier in a song that is preventing your group from singing it? Remove that barrier! Is there something new or unique that your group can bring to a song? Do it!

2. Make this songbook work for you.

If you're working with kids who love to dance while they sing, you might make a bouncy new piano intro and interludes to "We're Gonna Shine" (#41). If you're in a noisy outdoor protest and have only a few moments to teach everyone the words, you might turn the third voice part of "Resilience" (#24) into a rap. It may mean rearranging "We Are Rising Up" (#34) so each verse is a call-and-response, because you're leading a pub sing and everyone is learning on the spot. You might decide to repeat the refrain of "Rise" (#25b) three extra times because your collegiate women's chorus loves closing their concert with their soloists improvising showy riffs. You may have your church choir hum "Courage to Be Who We Are" (#8) while an appropriate text is read aloud during a service. One performance of "This Is What Democracy Looks Like" (#30) might be accompanied with ukulele, the next with an electric guitar, and the next may have no accompaniment at all.

We've added chords to almost every song to facilitate the use of accompanying instruments. Several of the songs have performance suggestions, which you can transfer from one song to the other. Many of the songs are marked as "zipper" songs, with interchangeable lyrics; you can apply this concept to almost every song.

3. Make the story come alive.

Made Possible by Westminster Presbyterian Church, Minneapolis

This is the most important thing. Each of these songs started with a composer compelled to tell a story, to address an injustice, to express a point of view, to start a conversation. This story, the central message, is essential. The mechanics of the song, whether it's in unison or harmony, whether it's a canon or a chant, accompanied or unaccompanied, is not as important as communicating what the song is about. To quote my co-editor Tesfa: "The ink is a suggestion, the story is mandatory." The notes on the page should not be a barrier but, rather, a way in to these stories. If the story remains central, then you are doing justice to this music.

It is important for us that this songbook be singable for people of any age, of any voice type, and from every possible background. We want this songbook to be inclusive. For it to be inclusive, it has to be flexible. We want you to feel free to adapt it to different situations. Our hope is that you can take these songs into a classroom, a march, or a church choir... sing them around a campfire, teach them to your kids during a road trip, sing them with a large group, or a small group, or maybe just sing them to yourself.

Ahmed Anzaldúa Co-editor, Justice Choir Songbook

How to Copy, Share, and Post Legally

It's true! Our songwriters have generously permitted Justice Choir to use a special Creative Commons* license on their music, so that you may legally copy and distribute these songs for free, as long as you honor the terms below. Please help us keep that chain of trust and generosity going by reading this page carefully, sharing our songwriters' work responsibly, and requesting their permission for other uses as necessary. Their contact info is at the bottom of each song. Thank you so much.

You may copy and distribute any song from the Justice Choir Songbook for any non-commercial use, free of charge, as long as you follow these three rules:

1) Include the Songwriter's Name. Always give them credit when you share their music.

Publicity is our songwriters' only ongoing payment, and they really deserve it. Credit them in your programs and on lyric sheets, name them in your videos, tag them in your social media posts.

Even nicer: Send the songwriter a little note when you perform their music (their contact info is at the bottom of every page). They will be so happy!

2) The Music Must Remain Free. You may not sell these songs; only give them away.

If you post your audio and/or video performances online, they must be free for anyone to access, and have no paid advertising on them.

Even nicer: Instead of forwarding or uploading our song PDFs, send people to our website www.justicechoir.org to download their own copies. This way they may tip our songwriters and support this work if they wish to do so.

3) Keep the Copyright © and Creative Commons © licenses on the sheet music.

To easily meet this requirement, don't crop the song page. Copy & print the page in full.

All copies need to include the Copyright holder's name(s), and the Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives 4.0 International License. If you're recopying or printing the music or lyrics in another format (ex. church bulletin), include the permissions line: "Licensed for non-commercial distribution through the Creative Commons BY-NC-ND 4.0 International License." Read the full license: https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-nd/4.0/

Even nicer: Include this page when you print the music, so the next person knows how to share responsibly too.

Common Questions

Where can I perform Justice Choir songs? (Anywhere, and in most places for free.)

- Non-commercial venues are free (ex. school, church, government offices, public spaces, capitol rotunda, city park).
- Commercial venues and for-profit businesses (ex. coffee shop, bar, arena, radio/TV) are licensed by Performing Rights Organizations or PROs. If the songwriter has their PRO listed (it's near the © of the song), please report your performances in commercial venues to that organization (ASCAP, BMI, or SESAC), just like other copyrighted music.

May I sell a recording of a Justice Choir song? (Only if you secure the proper license.)

• Like other copyrighted music, all entities (even nonprofits) must obtain a mechanical license to sell audio (ex. CDs, mp3s, iTunes, Spotify), and a synchronization license to sell video (ex. DVDs, monetized YouTube videos, films).

What rights do the songwriters retain?

- All commercial and for-profit use. To sell a Justice Choir song, you must get permission from the copyright holder.
- Right to derivatives. All arrangements (even if distributing free) must receive permission from the copyright holder.

Other licensing and permissions questions? Email us at justicechoir@gmail.com.

&lt;sup>*</sup> Creative Commons (CC) is a nonprofit organization devoted to expanding the range of creative works available for others to build upon and to share legally. They provide free, easy-to-use copyright licenses to make a simple and standardized way to give the public permission to share and use creative work on conditions of the creator's choice. # Justice Choir Songbook, Volume 1

2. Ain't Gonna Let Nobody Turn Me 'Round

Hebrew Text & Translation:*

אנא אל נא רפא נא לנו

Ana el na r'fa na lanu (Please God heal us) ah-nah el nah reh-fah nah lah-noo

רפואת הנפש

r'fuat hanefesh (with renewal of the soul) reh-foo-aht hah-ne-fesh

Performance Suggestions:

- Sing in unison before starting the canon.
- Mix voice parts within groups.

Karen writes: "I sing the first three measures of 'Ana El Na' with my synagogue congregation on Shabbat mornings with the traditional words "r'fa na la" ("heal her") from Moses' prayer for his sister Miriam. Our congregation traditionally repeats it while the rabbi recites the "Mi sheibeirach" prayer, a traditional prayer for those who are ill, which includes a plea for both physical and spiritual healing.

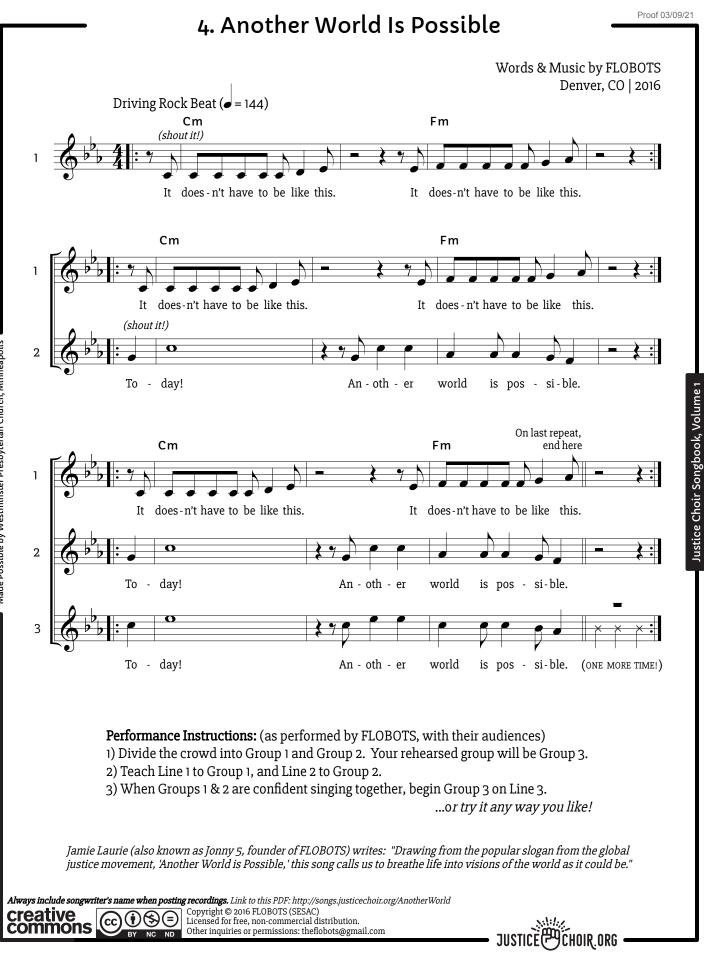

In a time of so much hatred, I have been thinking of the need for emotional healing, especially for those who feel the urge to lash out with words or physical violence. I have adapted the 'Ana el na' prayer, adding text from the 'Mi sheibeirach' prayer, and directing it towards all of us. The song is therefore a prayer for the healing of all of our minds and hearts, and I like to think it is especially for those among us consumed by anger."

- Improvisation encouraged!

Wendi writes: "It was hard to decide what to put on our signs for the Women's March on Washington; there were so many issues and so much that could be said. I decided that my issues could be boiled down to basic human rights for everyone. I love the quote attributed to Martin Luther King, Jr. about the arc of the moral universe bending toward justice, so I borrowed from that for my sign. As we marched, the words on my sign became a tune in my head, which became this song."

- Repeat the verse while part of the group continues to chant. End together on the chant.
- For a group of higher voices, transpose up a major third using chords: C#m, E, B, A

From the editors: This is the anthem of Vocal Coalition (VOCO), an innovative youth choir program in Colorado that empowers 5th-12th graders to come together across cultural lines through music. When founding member Emma Bechler, then 16 years old, participated in a writers workshop with the hip-hop group FLOBOTS, she was inspired to write this introduction to their song "Fight with Tools." Emma, singing from the piano, shared the stage with FLOBOTS for the premiere.

* Chant is from FLOBOTS' song, "Fight with Tools," off their 2007 album of the same name. It is heard under the lyrics: "We need heroes / Build them / Don't put your fists up / Fill them / Fight with our hopes and our hearts and our hands / We're the architects of our last stand."

14. Liberty and Justice for All

Justice Choir Songbook, Volume 1

Words by James Weldon Johnson, 1899

- Music by John Rosamond Johnson, 1900
- Lift ev'ry voice and sing, "Til earth and heaven ring, Ring with the harmonies of Liberty; Let our rejoicing rise High as the list'ning skies, Let it resound loud as the rolling sea. Sing a song full of the faith that the dark past has taught us, Sing a song full of the hope that the present has brought us; Facing the rising sun of our new day begun, Let us march on 'til victory is won.
- 2. Stony the road we trod, Bitter the chastening rod, Felt in the days when hope unborn had died; Yet with a steady beat, Have not our weary feet Come to the place for which our fathers sighed? We have come over a way that with tears has been watered, We have come, treading our path through the blood of the slaughtered, Out from the gloomy past, 'Til now we stand at last Where the white gleam of our bright star is cast.
- 3. God of our weary years, God of our silent tears, Thou who has brought us thus far on the way; Thou who has by Thy might Led us into the light, Keep us forever in the path, we pray. Lest our feet stray from the places, our God, where we met Thee, Lest, our hearts drunk with the wine of the world, we forget Thee; Shadowed beneath Thy hand, May we forever stand, True to our God, True to our native land.

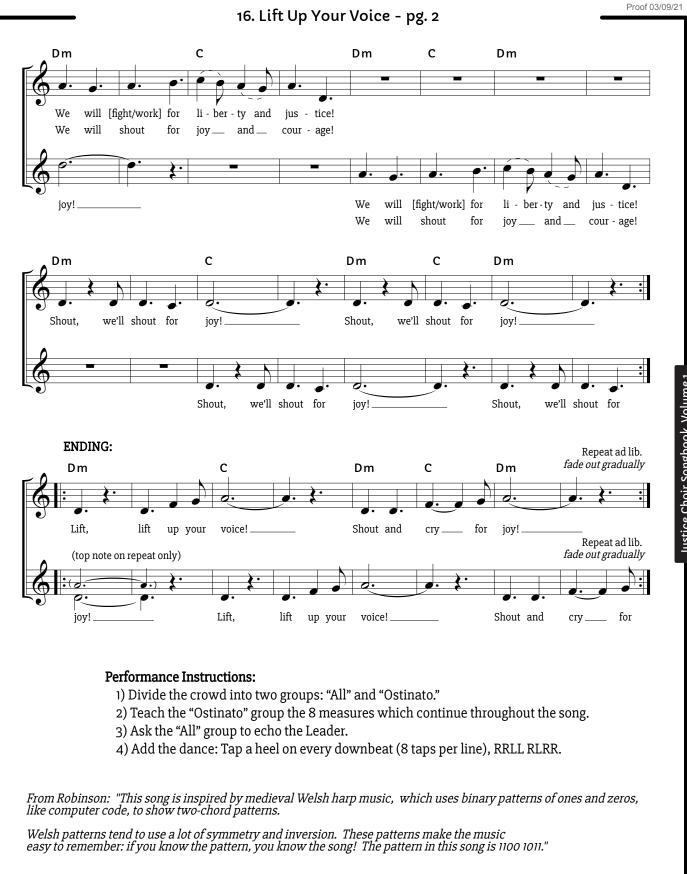

"Known by many as the Negro National Anthem, 'Lift Every Voice and Sing' has stirred souls for over a century. One of the lines that resonates with me the most is, 'Sing a song full of the faith that the dark past has taught us...' What has the dark past taught you in your fight for equity and justice?" - Tesfa Wondemagegnehu, co-editor

19. ¡No nos moverán! (We Shall Not Be Moved)

English lyrics: We shall not, we shall not be moved! We shall not, we shall not be moved! Just like a tree that's planted by the water, we shall not be moved!

Originally from the African-American spiritual tradition, it was in the 1930s that "We Shall Not Be Moved" and its Spanish version "iNo nos moverán!" both became rallying cries for solidarity in U.S. labor and civil rights movements, often deployed by singers arm-in-arm in the face of repression. "iNo nos moverán!" would go on to become an important part of the Chicano movement of the 1960s as well as of the social justice and revolutionary movements across Spain and Latin America. It is sung all throughout the Spanish-speaking world in this version; it's the one I grew up with. -Ahmed Anzaldúa, co-editor

29. The Place Called Planet Earth

- The long ice ages came and went, The dinosaurs they died, And then up came the human race And spread itself worldwide.
- 3. There came an age of industry, When coal and oil were mined, And we burned them for their energy And work of every kind.
- 4. We drove our cars along the ground, We flew our planes above, We felled the trees and killed the birds And hurt the earth we loved.

- 5. And now the carbon's building up, And now the ocean's warm, And now we need to turn around And cease from doing harm.
- 6. So stop the hunt for fossil fuels, And start on wind and sun, And learn to treasure Planet Earth– For it's our only one.
- 7. There is a place called Planet Earth, It is so blue and green, It's covered 'round with seas and skies, A wonder to be seen.

Performance Suggestions:

- Feature various soloists (feel free to alter the rhythms to fit the words).
- · Improvise backup harmonies on a hum or 'Oo.'
- Try it with a "House of the Rising Sun" karaoke backing track (if using The Animals 1964 version, sing through the instrumental verse).

37. We Sing For Justice

lyric sheet

Words adapted by Darrell Goodwin

Music: Vive L'Amour, trad. English; arr. Darrell Goodwin Hungry Horse, MT | 2017

- Verse 1: Let every good person now join in our song. We sing for justice! It's justice for everyone, pass it along. We sing for justice!
- Refrain: We sing for, we sing for, we sing for peace. We sing for, we sing for, we sing for peace. We sing for peace, we sing for peace, We sing for justice.
- Verse 2: A friend on the left and a friend on the right. We sing for justice! In love and good fellowship, let us unite. We sing for justice!
- (Refrain)
- Verse 3: Now wider and wider our circle expands. We sing for justice! We sing for our neighbors in far away lands. We sing for justice!

(Refrain)

"Vive L'Amour" (or "Vive La Compagnie") has many variations around the world. Its first written reference is from England (1818), and it was first published in the United States in 1844. The tune has a long history of political uses, including the 19th century Irish version "Ireland Blocks The Way," and a U.S. Confederacy version sung during the American Civil War.

Darrell writes: "I fondly remember singing this in college and thought it would make a fun song to adapt for the Justice Choir Songbook."

Performance Suggestion:

Made Possible by Westminster Presbyterian Church, Minneapolis

• For treble voices, sing lowest harmony an octave higher.

Though this tune appears in hymnals in the United States credited as "Traditional Mexican," it has no characteristics of Mexican indigenous music, and no one knows who composed it originally. Its first written appearance was in the songbook "Celebremos II" in 1983, transcribed from an interview with a Mexican woman in Los Angeles following a worship service. It may have been composed in the 1960s. - Ahmed Anzaldúa, co-editor
